

PEOPLE

Top writers pick nine rosés that show off the best of Provence

By Richard Siddle

Share this...

December 29, 2022

Libby Brodie, wine critic for City AM and co-founder of The Wine Collective

Libby Brodie believes Vins de Provence rosé has been key in opening up wine as a whole to so many more people

Here is my selection of three Vins de Provence rosés that show what Provence can do best.

Famille Sumeire, Cesar a Sumeire, Château Coussin, 2021 (Côtes de Provence)

Vibrant and youthful, crisp zippy citrus hits the palate then unfolds into delicate floral refinement. The slightly continental micro-climate of Côtes de Provence Sainte-Victoire, with its limestone and argillaceous sandstone soils, is known for its subtle high-toned rosés and underneath the exuberance this wine has a precise almost saline backbone.

« The general public like rosé whatever the time of year »